

SPEAKER INFORMATION:

Boyd Haley, PhD:

Emeritus Professor of Chemistry/Biochemistry in the Department of Chemistry at the University of Kentucky Markey Cancer Center, is an international speaker and world expert on mercury toxicity and neurological diseases. He was a founder and is the scientific advisor of ALT Biosciences, Inc. His research in the biochemical aberrancies in Alzheimer's disease also lead to his identifying mercury toxicity as a major exacerbating factor, perhaps even a causal factor for this disease. He was one of the first to propose that the organic-mercury preservative (thimerosal) in vaccines was the most likely toxic agent involved in Gulf War Syndrome and autism related disorders. Further, in collaboration with others he has shown using mercury analysis of birth-hair that autistics represent a subset of the population that cannot excrete mercury effectively.

In the past few years Dr. Haley has testified on the effects of mercury toxicity from dental amalgams and vaccines before the Congressional Committee on Government Reform, the Pentagon to Surgeon Generals, the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences and to numerous legislative committees at the State level that were considering bills to remove thimerosal and mercury from dental and vaccines products. He has also testified before the FDA committee for Review and Analysis of the Literature on the Health Effects of Dental Amalgams and before the Institute of Medicine of the National Academy of Sciences regarding vaccines and autism.

Andrew Moulden, MD, PhD: (Brain Specialist) holds degrees in Biological Psychology (Bachelors), Child Development (Masters) with thesis in developmental neuropsychology and language development in children. His PhD is in Clinical and Experimental Neuropsychology, with a sub specialty in Cognitive Neuroscience. His doctoral thesis was in neuro-electrophysiology and Functional Brain Imaging. He has received over 27 scholarships and awards for academic and research excellence in the brain and behavioral sciences. He is the developer of the BrainGuard, non-invasive neurovascular imaging protocol, enhanced measurement, imaging and diagnostic tools for neurologists and hematologists.

He explains his view that neurological, hematological, and immunological evidence supports the conclusion that all vaccines carry the risk of major injury leading to chronic diseases and disorders including, but not limited to Autism. The forensic evidence, as he states, is now as easy as "come see for yourself." <http://www.brainguardmd.com/> - Tolerance Lost. He states there are answers AND solutions for the vaccine injured, neurodevelopment disorders population, and public health departments.

Dr. Moulden, continues to expand his work helping individuals with autism through affiliations with Brightsteps & Therapy4Kids in addition to successfully testifying in vaccine exemption / injury cases.

It is time
That we first create,
Then set the standards,
In our Communities and Lives
Instead of complaining as others do so for us.
